E. Frank Suber

1940 - 1987

Frank Suber, Extension Entomologist, University of Georgia Cooperative Extension Service, Tifton, Georgia, died July 17, in Tift General Hospital. Frank was born in Thomas County, Georgia, December 11, 1940. After completing high school at Ochlochnee High School, Ochlochnee, Georgia, Frank served in the U. S. Army in Vietnam where he was with Army Intelligence.

After returning from Vietnam, Frank attended Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College at Tifton, Georgia. He received his BS in Agriculture from the University of Georgia in 1968, MS in Entomology from the University of Georgia in 1970, and PhD in Entomology from Clemson University in 1972. While in school Frank served as a Graduate Assistant at the University of Georgia and as a Research and Teaching Assistant at Clemson University.

As Extension Entomologist, Frank was responsible for soybean, grain, and forage crops. During this time he was instrumental in preparing an annual Summary of Losses from Insect Damage and Costs of Control in Georgia, serving as editor of this publication.

Frank was an excellent taxonomist and was relied on by his co-workers in this field. He had the innate ability to identify insects from descriptions given over the telephone by county agents, farmers, and homeowners. He was seldom wrong in these identifications. Survivors include a son, Charles, his parents, two sisters, and a brother.
